CHAUTAQUA IS NEXT EVENT

PROGRAMS OF MERIT ARE OFFERED

Event, Staging Ellison-White Attractions To Begin June 5 at City Park's Open Air Theatre

The next event of importance coming Hood River way, leaving aside for a moment the Glorious Fourth, which will really be the opening function of Chautauqua week, is the annual Chautauqua, staging Ellison-White attractions at the open air theatre in the city park, made famous by the local Chautauqua Association, which began its activities in Woodworth park, in the Upper Valley and later transferring them to the city. The Ellison-White Chautauqua company is one of the foremost in the country, and its concerts, lectures and amusement programs are high class.

The merit of the Ellison-White Company's program are well illustrated by a story that was recently told by Henry Serr, of the Hotel Oregon, formerly proprietor of the Hotel Gail at Dallas. "We had a man in our town," says Mr. Serr, "who was noted far and near for his parsimony. (Mr. Serr did not divulge the name.) He owned a large portion of the business houses, and he had not been known ever to even take a glass of beer at the hotel where he paid him a mighty big rent for a corner room in one of his buildings. I just mention that to show what kind of a man he was.

"Well, this Chautauqua came along, and by some act of Providence somebody sold this old man a ticket. You may be sure he didn't give away a single one of them. He attended every performance; for that ticket had cost him $2.50.

"The programs were good, and when the event was over the old man went to the committee in charge and told them if any money were needed toward making good a guaranty to the Chautauqua company that he was ready with 100 cold cash dollars."

Additional Chautauqua information is furnished as follows by the secretary of the Commercial Club:

July 5th to 10th inclusive. Every morning for children at 9 a. m. Every afternoon for everybody at 3, every evening at 7.30.

Season tickets—Adults, $2.50; high school students, $1.50; children, $1.

At noon of the opening day season tickets advance 50 cents. Tickets will be on sale at Clarke's drug store at 10 a. m. June 27, after the committee of 40 have canvassed the town and Heights business sections. The first 25 children to buy $1 tickets will get a Chautauqua War Bonnet. Any one wishing to get tickets without coming to town may mail check to R. E. Scott, Secretary. Tickets will be mailed after June 27th. There seems to be a demand for reserved seats, so the park only. There are 180 seats in the Park; so the first 180 will get them at a price of 50c each good for the 12 performances. Exchange your season ticket for a Reserve Season at Clarke's drug store.

Every buyer of a season ticket gets a numbered button. Three of these buttons are in duplicate. Register your number at Clarke's drug store in the "book" and when you find the duplicate you get your money back. Thus six people get free tickets.

All performances will be given rain or shine as arrangements have been made for a canvas roof if it rains.

On former years the Hood River Chautauqua has been one of the unique features of the community, all performances having been given mostly by the musical and dramatic talent of the valley.

MILITARY SPIRIT AROUSED BY CALL

Hood River has no military organization, but local men, former members of companies of the national guard of other states, declare that they are ready to answer their country's call if necessary, and it is thought that a company or two of troops could be organized within a few days in the city and valley.

"I am ready," says J. B. Canfield, former Indiana guardsman. "Hood River can send out a company on a very short notice, I think," says Dr. F. C. Brosius, who holds the rank of major in the Oregon medical reserve corps. Dr. Brosius served as captain in the medical reserve in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war.

Because of the critical Mexican situation and the orders of mobilization issued to the National Guard, a military spirit has pervaded Hood River and much talk has been heard of the local organization of a company of troops.

"On former occasions the organization of a company of the National Guard has been proposed," says Geo. R. Wilbur, "but nothing definite was ever done, because we thought we would be unable to carry out our plans. Under existing conditions, our ends might be accomplished."

PORTLAND-GOTHAM HIKERS IN THE CITY

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Norris and little daughter, June Margaret, the latter but nine years old and the youngest hiker ever to negotiate the Columbia River highway, arrived here Tuesday morning shortly before noon from Cascade Locks. All of the party, pedestrians en route to New York city, were comparatively fresh, despite their 75 mile journey begun Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris and little daughter camped the first night near Bonneville. Monday night they pitched their camp just this side of Cascade Locks.

The party, who are conducting a Portland publicity campaign under the auspices of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, were luncheon guests Tuesday at the Hotel Oregon. Mr. and Mrs. Norris and daughter will remain here, working until about July 1, when they will be joined by Miss Jeanne Burleigh, of Portland, and continue their long walk to Gotham. The mother and little girl will probably find employment in the berry fields, and Mr. Norris contemplates going to Dee to secure temporary employment with the Oregon Lumber Co. A series of entertainments will be given here under the auspices of fraternal organizations.

LITTLE JOURNEYS IN THE MID-COLUMBIA

Have you ever been to the Mitchell Point tunnel? If you haven't an automobile, go in your buggy or ride your horse. If you have no buggy or horse, then walk. But by all means do not fail to see this wonderful work of the highway architect.

It is safe to say that 75 per cent of the people of the city and surrounding valley have seen Mitchell Point. Citizens from an entire day to drive down and see the wonderful tunnel.

It is not necessary to give any directions for those desiring to travel to Mitchell Point. Keep straight down the old State road. But do not stop at this side of the tunnel; go entirely through the bore and to the west approach in order that you may get a view of the unique summer home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Parker on Little Boy Ranch.

If you have the time climb at least to the top of Little Mitchell, the jutting basalt cliff through which the tunnel is cut. If you would be rewarded with one of the finest views of the Columbia river anywhere in the mid-Columbia, take the old county road until you reach the summit, and climb to the top of Big Mitchell. At the summit of the road you will see a trail leading away on the side of the shell rock mountain to the left. Just follow the trail till you reach the timber at the back of the high point and then turn north. You may encounter some of Edgar Locke's goats that run wild, but do not be alarmed, they will not attack you.

Oregon is dry, but if you desire a substitute for champagne, one that will not leave an after kickback, just climb Big Mitchell and drink in the view.

CITY GIVES $150 TO SWIMMING POOL

Acting on a petition signed by many citizens, the council Monday night appropriated the sum of $150 to be used in the swimming pool constructed last year on a city park by a fund raised by private subscription. The pool, fed by waters of the Farmers' Irrigation District, has become popular among the children of the city during the warm weather.

Nickelsen was reelected clerk of the board. Mr. Blanchar received 136 votes. Five votes were cast for other citizens for the board position. Mr. Nickelsen received 87 votes against 58 for Mrs. Gould.

The other members of the school board are Dr. C. H. Jenkins, who will be chairman the coming year, and Mrs. Alma Howe.

Bishop R. L. Paddock, Rev. A. E. Macensara, Mrs. Thomas Flieger and Scott Aiken are in Baker this week attending the annual convention of the eastern Oregon diocese of the Episcopal church.

ASS'N MAKES RECORD DEAL

SEASON'S CARLOT OUTPUT IS SOLD

White Salmon Berries Included in Deal—
C. H. Robbins & Co., North Dakota, Purchasers

The Hood River Apple Growers Association and the White Salmon Fruit Growers' Union have sold their entire carlot output of strawberries of the season to C. H. Robbins & Co., dealers of Grand Forks, North Dakota. The deal, made by Wilmer Sieg, is said to be the largest ever made of strawberries in the Northwest. It is now estimated that 150 carloads, in addition to express shipments that will be disposed of in local markets, will roll to the North Dakota commission men, who distribute the berries through Montana, Canadian points and the Dakotas.

The price is not given out of the Association. Mr. Sieg, however, says that the returns of this year, because of the contract price to C. H. Robbins & Co., will be the best in the history of the Hood River and White Salmon berry industry. The total returns will reach approximately $200,000.

The deal was made before the beginning of the season, although not announced until last Friday. Growers with the harvest now at its peak, are jubilant over the prospect. Last season the North Dakota dealers purchased from the Apple Growers Association in a single contract 40 carloads of berries.

"The price," says Mr. Sieg, "is the largest, so far as I know, ever received in any strawberry district in America for the entire crop of fruit, unless it be the Kennebec district this year. Kennebec sold at a time when it was meeting no competition. The sale was made because Robbins & Co. had confidence in Hood River and White Salmon and because they knew that the sales organizations practically controlled the output of the two districts and would thus eliminate irregular and illegitimate competition. This deal shows what can be done under cooperative organization, and it insures Hood River and White Salmon proper values as long as organization is maintained.

"Yet our deal is surrounded by a great deal of sensitive conditions. Cut throat competition cannot injure us this year, but if the Dakota market is broken this year, we may rest assured that we will not get the cream of the commission firm's business another season."

Mr. Sieg states that the last assertion is made because of the fact that during the past several days interests hostile to the sales organizations and the purchasers of the berries have been offering affiliated growers rewards of higher prices to break their contracts with the sales organization. Mr. Sieg, while he will not name them, declares that the offers are made by outside influences.

ROAD NAMES CONFUSING, SAYS MRS. HOWE

A campaign to secure significant and appropriate names for all of Hood River county's highways is under way.

"At present," says Mrs. Alma Howe, "our system of names is incomplete and very confusing. The lack of names themselves, and the lack of significance of those existing, has been the subject of conversation of numerous Portland people who have visited my place recently. The names of Portland, as applied to the highway penetrating the Oak Grove district, is very confusing, and to the traveler ignorant of the valley's routes, it is always thought that the Portland Way is the beginning of the route to Portland. The name was given the highway because a number of former Portland residents reside along it."

Mrs. Howe suggests that authorities appoint a committee to secure proper appellations for unnamed roads and to change the designation of those, the names of which are confusing.

AN OLD FASHIONED FOURTH PROPOSED

"An old-fashioned Fourth with everything that smacks of commercialism tabooed." Such is the slogan adopted by local business men who are promoting plans for the celebration of the national holiday here. It is proposed to barbecue a steer, lambs and pigs and serve the meat and crates of strawberries at a nominal price or free to visitors. Barrels of free lemonade will also be provided.

Athletic events and aquatic sports have been announced, and the recently organized Hood River Rifle Club, which has a membership of 75, will participate in the event.

Hood River seemed to take no interest in the coming event until the above plans were set in motion by Charles Carson and Joe Hayward. The young men received the support of the banks and Henry Serr.

Cherry Crop Little More Than Half

Rains and cold weather at the time of blossoming and continuing cold weather, when the fruit was small, have seriously affected the cherry crop of Hood River, and but little more than half a crop will be marketed this year. J. R. Nunamaker, whose tract yielded 43 tons last year, is now expecting only about 30 tons of fruit.

EUGENE ENCAMPMENT WAS SUCCESSFUL

"No annual encampment of Department of Oregon, G. A. R., was ever more successful than that held last week at Eugene," says S. F. Blythe, past commander of the state organization, who with his comrades, Judge A. C. Buck, S. Gopple, John A. Wilson, H. Nichols, R. M. Hunt and Newton Clark, returned Thursday from the university town. "I have never seen a better parade, and we old soldiers certainly appreciated the courtesies and hospitality shown us."

Mr. Gopple, commander of Canby Post of this city, was appointed one of the delegates to the national encampment to be held the latter part of August and the first of September in Kansas City. Mr. Clark was appointed a member of the committee on resolutions.

Members of Canby Corps, W. R. C., have never expressed more pride in their organization than on the first of the week, when delegates of the Corps returned from Eugene with a handsome portrait of Abraham Lincoln, presented to the Corps through Mrs. Bentley, past president of the organization, by the department inspector. The portrait came as a reward for the best ritualistic work in the state the past year. Mrs. Bentley was appointed institution and installation officer for the coming year.

Canby Corps was represented by Mrs. A. O. Anderson, Mrs. O. C. Dean, Mrs. Alida Shoemaker, Mrs. Alberta Steed, Mrs. B. F. Moses, Mrs. Newton Clark, Mrs. John A. Wilson and Mrs. Bentley.

"We cannot say too much in praise of the Eugene people for their hospitality," says Mrs. Bentley.

Before returning home, Mrs. Wilson will visit her brother, Geo. Chamberlain, at Yamhill.
